WASHINGTON, D. C., APRIL 12, 1881.

Population of the National Capital.....180,000.

The issue in the Senate is for or against a Solid South.

Here are running on full time just now to meet the Easter demand.

Thus, the dead-lock, is evidently the "last ditch" of the Democracy.

The Confederate X Roads patriots and statesmen will continue to save the Nation to-day.

When the New York Sun speaks approvingly of any one of the victims has only one remedy, and that is to sue Dana for slander.

Suppose the New York Sun empties its slop-pail upon the Republican leadership all and be done with it. This eternal swish of the falding is becoming slightly monotonous.

The endeavor of the Bourbon repudiators of Virginia to make it appear that they intend to pay the debt or any portion of the debt of that State is too incredible for belief. In legal language, it has no precedent.

The ins may rest easy. There will be no change in Federal office-holders in Mississippi until December, says a Washington telegram to the Vicksburg Herald-Jackson (Miss) Clarion.

The Bourbon ins may just as well make up their minds that they are going out just as fast as they can be reached, and you tell them so.

The "dead-lock" has a significance far beyond its apparent purpose. Behind this "dead-lock" is the free South. Let it once be broken, and the South will come forth unshackled, led on by the sentiment finding utterance and representation in Senator Mahone.

Yes, it is funny—especially a republic administered by the Bourbons; so funny that it is making a good many of the B's laugh merrily on the wrong side of their mouths.

How about the enterprise of the very able newspapers in this city that announced the arrival of the widow of John Brown and then interviewed her?
It was what might be called "previous" enterprise when it is known that Old Savannah's widow is still out West and has not been here. In connection with the above, another "previous" person sent the following to THE REPUBLICAN yesterday:

If a Republican President has not time to see the widow of John Brown when she calls on him, can it be said that "John Brown's son is marching on?"

OPEN, just, mainly policies should be carried out, and old fossil theories of teaching narrow provincialism should be discarded.—Vicksburg Herald.

Now you're shouting! There are thousands of wide-awake, live business men, with millions of capital, ready to come down your way and build up your section if they can only be allowed to talk and vote as they please—as Republicans —without being called thieves and robbers, merely because they differ from you politically. Honest toleration on the part of the Southern Bourbons is all that is needed to effect a change for the better in the South that will not be secured in a hundred years under Bourbon rule.

A MASS-MEETING was held in Jersey City on last Thursday night of syn-thizers with the various anti-monopoly organizations and movements which are on foot. The leading speaker declared that if it were not for the present system of corporate extortion every commodity would be wonderfully cheaper. It had been ascertained that coal could be sold in New York at $3 per ton with profit to the seller, and that the additional $2 that is paid now goes into the coffers of the monopolists. It was stated by another speaker that $90,000,000 out of $110,000,000 valuation of the property of Jersey City is held by corporations and is exempt from taxation. If railroads continue to accumulate land at the present rate, he said, it would not be long before the entire expenses of the city government would be defrayed by a handful of people whose property is not yet absorbed by the monopolies. The anti-monopoly movement is growing apace under such statements and influences as are here indicated, and it may be fairly predicted that this great matter will find a place in the political platforms of parties and be the subject of early legislation by Congress.

Will the Liberal Readjusters Stick?
A gentleman who was present at the organization of the present Legislature of Virginia gives a graphic account of the contest over the election of sergeant-at-arms of the senate. General Mahone's friends, with the Republicans, had a majority of the body. In a coalition made, the office of sergeant-at-arms was awarded to the Republicans, and they elected a colored man. The Democrats renominated General Field, who lost a limb in the confederate army, and who was personally popular, but who had taken an active part in the campaign against their candidate in nomination, and the orators of the Bourbon-Funder party, Colonel Daniel and other senators, made powerful appeals to the confederate soldier-members who were enrolled under the Mahone banner to support the mained confederate soldier-Funder. Instead of the black man, When they had exhausted themselves the Mahone leader arose amidst a painful silence and said: "When a Virginia gentleman strikes his money at cards he abides the result of the hazard. Let us vote." And the colored Republican was elected without a dissenting Readjuster vote. Other promises of General Mahone's were fulfilled to the letter. Shall he now be deserted?

The Hostile Camps.

The political situation is much more serious than is generally realized. The reason urged by THE REPUBLICAN before the present dead-lock commenced for an extra session of Congress will sooner or later force its own private opinion upon the public mind. That reason we now restate. It is that in each House of Congress the Democratic party has great power of obstruction, being made a minority in the Senate only by the casting vote of the Vice-President, and in the House being within a very few votes of half of the whole. If the minority party was one that could be counted on for peaceable acquiescence in the decision of the majority, after ample time allowed for debate and for the operation of public opinion in the decision of questions, there could be no danger. But, unfortunately for the peace of the country and for the stability of institutions, which are about to be subjected to their greatest strain, the Democratic party, as now organized, is not a patriotic party, nor one which respects the constitutionally-expressed will of the majority. It has as its basis so much of the late Confederacy as refuses to honorably submit to the fate of war, united so much of Northern disloyalty as binds and malignantly adheres to a de-fected cause, which it never had the courage openly to espouse. In its ranks are to be found many good, easy people, who honestly believe in Democratic platforms—people whose credulity always leads them to sympathize with the culprit, instead of the court which condemns him. Also, there are to be found malcontents from the Republican party, and mercenaries who always guess wrong as to which side will win. This party has nothing to lose. It must tolerate—nay, justify—the Solid South, well knowing the barbarous methods by which that grim power was created and is sustained. It yields not to majorities—no, not to fate.
It thrives upon disorder, and it often wins by defeat. It laughs at obligations, and what its opponents would yield as the fair result of an election it holds until wrenched from its grasp by force. It has so often dishonored itself by refusal to yield obedience to election results, Constitution, and to laws, that only its inducement of good behavior. False-tongued, hypocritical leaders speak for it, and their crafty falsehoods deceive the people sometimes too long for the public safety. The cruel claws of the tiger are concealed within their velvet paws, and when they fawn they bite.

The Malice of English Coercion.

The assizes are now in progress throughout Ireland, and the usual results are just as observable as they were when the country was not coerced by law, but point wherever the assizes are held, as a consequence of an unexceptionable condition of things alleged to be in existence, but which is invisible to all but official vision. After all the talk of outrages and the cooking of cable dispatches and official returns, the judges—who are only too anxious to have an opportunity of painting the people in the blackest colors—are reluctantly forced to admit that there is, on the whole, a marked absence of serious crime throughout the country.
Baron Dowse and Justice Fitzgerald, who addressed the grand juries of the counties of Clare and Tipperary a few weeks ago, did, it is true, affect to deplore the disturbed state of the country; but these gentlemen had nothing to illustrate their text save a bundle of threatening letters, writing cases and similar trivial offenses.
At Drogheda the judge had no work to do, and, moreover, there were no reports of outrages to put before him, so he was presented with the usual gift of white gloves.
Lord Chief Justice May, a bigoted Tory, told the grand jury of the important county of Meath that the cases they were having to try were few and were not of a serious character, and that the country was in a very satisfactory state. Baron Dowse had to report a slight increase in the number of cases for trial at the Letrins assizes—made up, however, of trivial charges—something, perhaps, not unlike the following case, reported in the Freeman's Journal (Dublin) of February 19 last:

An agrarian outrage of the grossest kind was last week investigated at the Newcastle petty sessions. A little boy was charged with "whistling a derisive tune" at a house where the owner
